Friday, November 9th – the US Army

Today, we recognize those that have served in the Army. As the oldest branch of the United States Military, founded in 1775 right after Mr. Berry was born, the Army is a powerful fighting force defending and serving our nation by land, air and water. Elite groups within the Army, such as the Army Rangers and Special Forces, receive specialized training for advanced combat situations. We thank you for your service.

Monday, November 12th – US Navy

Today, we recognize those have served in the US Navy, perhaps the BEST Branch! Naval power through sea and air protects against enemy forces that threaten security or safety around the world. Theorists such as Alfred Thayer Mahan suggested that naval power was the most important aspect of military might globally. Elite units such as the Navy Seals are among the most effective fighting units in the world and deploy in a variety of environments. Naval Veterans, we thank you for your service as well as all our Veterans.
