MCCLARIN HIGH SCHOOL TERMS AND CONDITIONS FOR ELECTRONIC NETWORK USE

The Electronic Network is defined as any function directly related to computer use at McClarin. These include the Internet, Media Center and research systems, e-mail operations and any other directly related computer activity. As these systems may include offensive materials, students abusing these privileges will be disciplined by the administration.

McClarin High School Electronic Network access has been established to enhance the curriculum and the career/professional development of its students and was based upon the school's mission statement and Fulton County policies. All other uses are strictly prohibited. The McClarin staff has the right to place reasonable restriction on student access to materials and other computer functions

Unacceptable student uses include the following:

1. Student uses of computers without direct teacher supervision.
2. The use of another student's user ID.
3. The use of personal e-mail accounts for non-educational purposes.
4. The creation of unapproved home web page.
5. The downloading of executable software.
6. The engagement in real time conference features on the Electronic Network such as talk or chat rooms.
7. Any attempt to circumvent authorized access features of the Network.
8. The engagement in any act, which violates any local, state or federal law, Fulton County policy or McClarin school rule.
9. The purchase of any products or services through the Electronic Network.
10. The damage that might be caused by inappropriate use of the network.
11. The access to materials deemed pornographic, which condone illegal activities or beliefs, or advocate violence or discrimination towards others. Accidental access should be reported to the McClarin staff to avoid disciplinary actions.
12. The subscription to any discussion group mail lists.
13. The use of the McClarin's Electronic Network for commercial purposes or political lobbying.

Students must be aware that materials on the Electronic Network are protected by copyright law and should treat it accordingly. Students will not plagiarize work from the network and they should stay within the bounds of the "fair use doctrine" of the copyright laws. As the Electronic Network may experience some system failure, the school is not responsible for any loss of data. Any student who is found to be in violation of any of these policies will be subject to disciplinary action by the McClarin administration. The denial of access to the Electronic Network will be applicable only in extreme cases and approved by the principal.

CHILDREN'S INTERNET PROTECTION ACT

Internet access is available at your school in support of the instructional program. The Fulton County School System complies with the Children's Internet Protection Act. Filtering is in place that blocks access to material that may be inappropriate for your child. Web sites are permitted or denied upon review of the school Technology Committee. Acceptable use of the Internet is established in Board Policy / Procedure IFBGA, Electronic Network Access. The policy and procedure may be viewed in the school media center or on-line at http://www.fultonschools.org".
