

The Spartan Way

Students

Successful SPARTAN students attend classes regularly. They are on time. They listen and train themselves to pay attention. They make sure they get all assignments missed by contacting the teacher themselves.

Successful SPARTAN students take advantage of extra opportunities to get help and to ask questions. They show a willingness to accept critical and constructive feedback and apply it to their work and habits for improvement.

Successful SPARTAN students care about their campus and school grounds and go out of their way to be responsible for their own trash as well as those of their school mates when they forget. They do this because they have PRIDE in their school. They do this because this school is not just a place they visit....it is their home away from home.

Successful SPARTAN students care about each other. No student is left out. No student eats alone or cannot name a meaningful friendship while here. Students reach out to others who are not like them. SPARTAN students are accepting of all individuals and go out of their way to live a student life showing respect, acceptance and compassion for everyone on campus.

Successful SPARTAN students show respect to adults on campus, even when in conflict. They accept personal responsibility for themselves and their actions and learn something about themselves from each interaction with adults.

Successful SPARTAN students are our pride and joy and they not only attend and learn at North Springs, they ARE what makes North Springs High School great!

The Spartan Way

Faculty

Successful SPARTAN staff show up regularly for work. They are on time. They are prepared to teach bell to bell. They jump in when others are unexpectedly absent and they make sure they work positively to see that student instruction is not impacted by teacher absence. When absent they follow the procedures and timelines for getting absences approved ahead of time.

Successful SPARTAN staff take advantage of extra opportunities to help students. They show a willingness to arrive early and be available to give critical and constructive feedback so that students can apply it to their work and habits for improvement.

Successful SPARTAN staff care about their campus and school grounds and go out of their way to be responsible for their own trash. They pitch in when cleaning staff are over worked and stretched thin. They do this because they have PRIDE in their school. They do this because this school is not just a place they work....it is their home away from home and these people are our "family".

Successful SPARTAN staff care about each other. No staff member is left out. No one eats alone unwillingly or cannot name a meaningful friendship while here. Staff members reach out to others who are not like them. SPARTAN staff are accepting of all individuals and go out of their way to live a work life showing respect, acceptance and compassion for everyone on campus.

Successful SPARTAN staff show respect to students, parents and colleagues on campus, even when in conflict. They accept personal responsibility for themselves and their actions and learn something about themselves from each interaction with colleagues.

Successful SPARTAN staff are our pride and joy and they not only work at North Springs High School they ARE what makes North Springs High School great!
